Subject: Aged receivables cleanup — need your write-off recommendation

Hi team,

As we close the books for the first half of the year and start thinking about year-end planning, I want to get our aged receivables cleaned up. A few accounts have been sitting in the 90+ day bucket for a while and I need a defensible recommendation on which to write off as bad debt and which we should keep pursuing.

The three that worry me most:

- Titan Wholesale — the bookkeeping invoice they're disputing. They claim part of the scope was never delivered. I issued a partial credit memo but I'm not sure it was ever applied on our side.
- Union Pacific Foods — they paid part of the balance and have gone quiet on the rest. This one feels like a likely write-off.
- KLM Restaurants — non-responsive, and we've already engaged collections.

Specifically, I need to know: (1) which of these qualify as bad-debt write-off candidates, (2) what the IRS expects in terms of documentation before we deduct them, and (3) whether any of the credit memos I've issued should already have been applied — because if they have not been, some of these balances are overstated.

I've attached our credit memo log so you can reconcile it against what's on our books. Please come back with a short recommendation I can take to year-end.

Thanks,
Jennifer
